

As the “founder” of pre-Qin Taoist school and the author of Lao-tze (also known as Tao Te Ching), Lao-tze exerted a profound historical influence on overall development of Chinese classical culture, formation and development of ancient political ideas and Taoism as a religion, as well as psychological structure, an in-depth culture of the national culture. However, for the life stories of Lao-tze himself, there is little reliable information. This problem has been found long ago: when composing Shih Chi, Sima Qian only briefly introduced personal information of Lao-tze. In Volume 63 Biography of Lao-tze, Shih Chi recorded three people, Li Er, Lao Laizi and Taishi Dan, indicating that, in mind of Sima Qian, these three people might be “Lao-tze”.
